By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III he first five volumes and volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to nonsubscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made); packing and postage, in India, 8

(exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

n important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

By DR. GRO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Recenue and Agricultural Department.

In the Recenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta and will be supplied to nonsubscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and inportant vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries

discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the verhacu-The Index will practically be a glossary of the verhacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable reference, which, it is hopes, and value.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

In the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supelied to nonsubscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8, annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

discoveries

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 Tolume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove or considerable value.

By Dr. GRO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to nonsubscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given underquotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of

O: Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

By Dr. Ggo. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to nonsubscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 toyal octave, pages a Volume II embraces the latter C.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E; F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of

O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will previously be a glossary of the vernacular The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By Dr. Ggo. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Recenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to nonsubscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made); packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV; latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

There are at present four different Acts in force for the regulation or jails in British India and for the enforcement of discipline therein. These Acts differ inter se in various important points, namely, as to the jail-offences enumerated in them, as to the punishments which might be inflicted for these offences, and as to the authorities competent to inflict these punishments. In consequence divergent systems of jail management have grown up in the several Provinces, whereby there has been a sacrifice of that uniform enforcement of sentences of imprisonment which effective general administration requires. The object of this Bill is to repeal the four local Acts and to prescribe a uniform system of prison management in India.

2. The Bill is mainly based on Act XXVI of 1870 (an Act to amend the law relating to Prisons), which is in force in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, the Central Provinces, Coorg and Burma, with amendments embodying the conclusions arrived at by the Government of India on the Report of the Jail Committee of 1889 and the Report of the Prison Conference of 1892, as stated in the Resolution recorded in the Home Department of the 9th November, 1892, and in the Circular letter to Local Governments and Administrations, dated the 25th March, 1893, to which it appeared necessary to give legislative form.

3. The details of the Bill which appear to call for remark are noticed in this paragraph.

Section 3 provides for clearer definitions of the terms "prison," "subsidiary gaol," "criminal prisoner," "convicted criminal prisoner," and "civil prisoner," and adds definitions of the terms "remission system" and "history-tickets".

Section 11.—The powers of a District Magistrate to issue orders to the Superintendent of a prison have been restricted to prisons other than central gaols or prisons situated in a Presidency-town.

Section 12.—The sanitary administration of a prison has been vested in the Medical Officer.

Section 23.—An addition has been made to this section, which provides a useful precaution against false charges of police torture or the means of detecting such mal-practices, if committed. It also makes separate provision for the search and examination of female prisoners after admission into prison.

Section 26 makes provision for the separation of juveniles who have arrived at the age of puberty from those who have not.

Section 28 requires the Medical Officer or a subordinate Medical Officer to visit each prisoner confined in cells at least once a day.

Section 34 restricts the employment of criminal prisoners sentenced to labour to nine hours in any one day, except on an emergency, and then only with the sanction in writing of the Superintendent. With the view of watching more closely the health of prisoners, this section provides for recording the weight of criminal prisoners at least once a fortnight upon their history-tickets, and places upon the Medical Officer the responsibility of seeing that a prisoner's health is not injured by the work on which he is employed.

Section 44.—This section follows the general principles embodied in the existing Prisons Acts (themselves based upon English legislation) and includes in the law itself a statement of the most important jail-offences. A few additional offences which seemed of sufficient importance have been included in this section, but it is still necessary to reserve the power of making rules the breach of which involve penal consequences, since every breach of a jail regulation is a jail offence, and it is not possible to include in the Act all the regulations which have to be observed in jails or expedient to make legislation necessary for the purpose of adding to or altering them. In order to provide for the equal treatment of prisoners throughout India, however the first clause of this section, relating to prison regulations generally, has been restricted by providing that, to make disobedience to such regulations punishable, the rules creating offences must be sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

Section 45.—Hitherto there have been in use in jails, besides the punishments prescribed in the existing laws, other forms of punishments, consisting in the modification, to the disadvantage of a prisoner, of matters of discipline or treatment left to the discretion of the executive, such as loss of marks, relegation to a disagreeable form of labour, modification of diet, forfeiture of privileges, etc. In order, however, to prevent the introduction of objectionable forms of punishment and to secure the due record of all punishments of whatever nature, it has been considered desirable to specify exhaustively all the forms of punishment which may be resorted to; and while the section retains those forms of punishment which are laid down in the present law, clauses (1), (2), (4) and (5) introduce into it the descriptions of punishment which have hitherto prevailed at the discretion of the executive. In some of the remaining clauses modifications have also been made. Clauses (6), (7) and (8) distinguish between the different degrees of solitary, separate and cellular confinement which may be used as a punishment and are borrowed from Provincial Jail Codes where they have been found successful Clause (9) provides for the combination of penal diet and solitary confinement; the maximum period for which penal diet may (under clause (5)) be imposed at one time is entered at n nety-six hours instead of seventy-two hours as in section 48 (2) of the Act of 1870, but this is in accordance with the law in force in Bombay (Bombay Act II of 1874, section 35, proviso) and has met with general approval. Clauses (10) and (11) relate to the imposition of irons as a punishment, which under the Act of 1870 can in other Provinces than Bengal only be ordered by the Magistrate under section 49 of the Act of 1870. The restrictions which have of late years been placed on the employment of corporal punishment, and the objections to the frequent use of penal diet, make it necessary to invest Superintendents with some additional means of coercion for the control of unruly and hardened criminals. Clause (12) adds a minor punishment which has been found useful in Bengal in connection with thefts and destruction of prison clothing. Female and civil prisoners are specially excluded from the punishments of handcuffs or fetters and from whipping.

Sections 46 to 50 have been recommended by the Conference of experts on jail management from all Provinces who were convened by the Government of India in the early part of 1892 for the purpose of preparing an amended and consolidated Prisons Bill for all India.

Section 51 reproduces the section bearing number 49 in the Act of 1870, but the period of additional imprisonment which may be ordered by the Magistrate after judicial trial has been increased from six months to one year. It also provides that the Court may resort to any of the ordinary forms of jail punishment as it thinks fit, to meet the case of a Magistrate taking a different view from the Superintendent of the gravity of the prisoner's offence.

Section 54 is borrowed from the Police Act, V of 1861, section 29, and is likely to prove a useful provision.

Sections 55 and 56.—These sections are based on the rules in force in Madras and have been accepted generally by Local Governments and Administrations.

Sections 58 and 59.—These sections make provision for framing the necessary rules for regulating the matters which are left by the previous sections of the Bill to be dealt with by such rules.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Land Acquistion Act, 1870, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 25th January 1894 :-

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 2147, dated 14th October 1893, amend the Land and enclosures [Papers No. 1 to Bill No. III].

From Officiating Revenue Secretary to Government, Punjab, No. 1162, dated 26th 1870, has been From Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, No. 67—94, dated 15th January 1894 and enclosure [Papers No. 3 to Bill No. III].

the Bill as amended by the former Select Committee and appended to their Report dated 22nd March 1893, together with the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

2. We have only a few changes to recommend in the amended Bill. They will be found printed in italics in the copy of that Bill which we attach to this Report.

3. We propose that the Bill should not come into force until the 1st March 1894, so as to allow of an interval between the date of its passing and its coming into force during which the officers concerned may become acquainted with its provisions.

4. In order to prevent any doubt as to the right to compensation of persons who own easements affecting lands taken up under the Bill, we have added an explanation to the definition of "person interested" making the definition expressly cover such persons.

5. We have amended section 5 so as to restrict references of disputes as to the amount to be paid for damage under that section to the chief revenue-officers of districts.

5. We have amended section 5 so as to restrict references of disputes as to the amount to be paid for damage under that section to the chief revenue-officers of districts, as we are of opinion that such references should be decided by these officers only.

6. The object of the amendment we have suggested in the proviso to section 6 is to enable land to be acquired under the Bill for the purposes of colleges, hospitals and other public institutions which are in some cases only partly supported out of public revenues or the funds of local authorities.

7. The words we have added to section 9 (2) will enable the Collector to require persons to put their statements in writing in all cases in which he may consider this course necessary or desirable. Since the Collector is bound to make an award under section 11, it will prevent misunderstanding to give him this power.

8. A question having been raised as to the competency of the Collector to summon the parties interested as witnesses under section 14, we have thought it well to remove all doubt by inserting a specific reference to such parties in the section.

9. We have proposed the addition to section 17 (2) of the words printed in italics, as the language of the sub-section as settled by the former Select Committee did not appear to us to be sufficiently wide to provide for all the cases in which it may be desirable that a Railway Administration should acquire the immediate possession of land. Such acquisition is sometimes necessary for the maintenance of the traffic of a line when no riverside station is involved. river-side station is involved.

to. The object of the slight addition made by us to section 18 (r) is to make the provisions of that section as to disputes concerning apportionment the same as those of section 30 on that subject.

11. The new sub-section we have added to section 19 will insure the submission by the Collector of an accurate and complete descriptive list of all the relevant papers which may be required by the Court.

12. We are of opinion that only such land should be deemed to be part of a house, manufactory or building which it is proposed to take under the Act, as can be held to be reasonably required for the full and unimpaired use of such house, manufactory or building. We have, therefore, added a clause to section 49 (1) directing the Court to have regard to this question when deciding any reference which may be made to it under the section.

13. In accordance with a suggestion made by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce we have required rules under section 55 to be made after previous publication, so as to give the public an opportunity of criticizing them before they are finally adopted.

14. We do not think that the amendments now proposed are of sufficient importance to require re-publication, and we recommend that the Bill appended to this Report be passed into law.

SCHEDULE V .- (EXPORT TARIFF.)

*	Name of Article.	Rate of duty.
	Rice, whether husked or unhusked, including rice-flour.	Three annas per Indian maund of 82375 avoirdupois weight.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE embarrassed condition of the finances, and the certainty that the accounts of the present year and the estimates of the year 1894-95 show a heavy deficit, have placed the Government under the necessity of reducing expenditure so far as reduction is possible and of raising a larger revenue to meet the cost of administration.

It has accordingly been decided to increase the revenue by the imposition of indirect taxation in the form of import duties, and the present Bill practically reimposes the Tariff Schedule of 1875, with some exceptions, of which the most important is the omission of duties on Cotton Yarn and Goods.

The 28th February 1894.
